AND IN THE BOLDNESS OF HIS MIND.

In this spirit, and with the determination to face all obstacles, the Home for Incurables needs the support of the thoughtful and generous public.

There is a close relationship between the Home for Incurables and the Independent League. The league is made up of those who believe in the rights of the individual and are willing to work for them.

Mr. Bryan, for example, was a member of the Independent League, and he fought for the rights of the individual. In his speech at the University of Chicago, he said:

"The time to encourage a man in doing what he believes is right is when he is young. I believe in the Independent League because it is a movement for the future."

Mr. Bryan openly advocates the Independent League, and his support is very important to the league.

Mr. Bryan is not alone in his support of the Independent League. Many other leaders of American thought and action are supporting it.

Mr. Bryan is a leader in the Independent League, and he has been a member of the league since its inception.

I am fully aware that you will have to combat the politicians who are actuated by selfish motives and the subverted party spirit. I believe further that there is more individuality and a stronger sentiment of independence than ever before.

The time to encourage a man in doing what he believes is right is when he is young. I believe in the Independent League because it is a movement for the future.

Mr. Bryan is a leader in the Independent League, and he has been a member of the league since its inception.

I am fully aware that you will have to combat the politicians who are actuated by selfish motives and the subverted party spirit. I believe further that there is more individuality and a stronger sentiment of independence than ever before.